Dear College Media Network partner publication:

Hope that the academic year is off to a good start. We wanted to reach out with some news. Starting today, Access Network Company, the leading online city guide content management software platform for premium brands, publishers, and local merchants, and the owner of BlackBook Media, will take over operations of College Media Network, which has been acquired by a private investment firm from mtvU. We believe that the Access Network is uniquely suited to continue the evolution of the College Media Network.

You can expect the same level of customer service you know and rely upon, including the benefits of the College Publisher content management system and associated hosting services. The CMN team will continue to be on-hand to provide you 24/7 customer support. Additionally, your existing agreement with College Publisher will remain in effect.

We feel confident that you will benefit from the Access Network's content management platform and publishing expertise, including new functionality for mobile and other handheld device distribution -- one of many new features the company will deliver in the near future. With Access Network's extensive knowledge of this marketplace, College Publisher will be well positioned for the future.

The same lines of communication for CMN will remain open and, as always, if you have any issues or concerns, you can reach out to info@collegemedianetwork.com. The Access Network will send a press release announcing this news shortly, and will also be in touch with you directly in the near future.

Sincerely,

Carlo DiMarco
